

CALL FOR APPLICATIONS

MAKING THE GLOBAL LOCAL: teaching human rights in the community college classroom

A SYMPOSIUM FOR COMMUNITY COLLEGE EDUCATORS INTERESTED IN INCORPORATING HUMAN RIGHTS INTO THEIR TEACHING

JUNE 9, 2012
9:00 AM - 5:00 PM

Stanford University • Stanford, CA

(Human+Rights ahdu88.blogspot.com)

A day-long symposium to discuss, share, and learn about teaching human rights in a wide range of world areas, academic disciplines, and classroom settings. Emphasis will be on methods of incorporating human rights education into the community college classroom. Sample lesson plans, pedagogic resources and materials, and strategies for reaching diverse student populations will be shared.

Human Rights Educator Fellowships

This symposium, organized by the Stanford Human Rights Education Initiative (SHREI), is the second event in a four-year collaborative effort to encourage the teaching of human rights in California community colleges. Participants are eligible to apply for year-long Human Rights Educator fellowships. Details about the 2012-13 fellowship and other opportunities at Stanford will be available at the symposium.

Attendance at the symposium is by application only
