RE: 2012-2013 CSU and UC transfer numbers

Overview

The California State University Chancellor's Office and the University of California Office of the President released the numbers of community college transfers to the CSU and UC systems for 2012-13.

Some highlights:

- The transfer rate to the CSU system increased between 2011-12 and 2012-13 by 16%.
- The transfer rate to the UC system increased between 2011-12 and 2012-13 by 5%.
- The largest number of CSU transfers enrolled at San Jose State University (170), San Francisco State University (66) and Cal State East Bay (37). Out of these three institutions, only San Francisco State University experienced a decline in the number of Foothill transfer students from 2011-12 to 2012-13.
- White students represent over one-third of those enrolling in the CSU system in 2012-13 (37%), while Asian and Latino students each represent almost one-fifth of all CSU transfer students (17% Asian; 17% Latino).
- The acceptance rate to the UC system in 2012-13 is 76%.
- The largest number of UC transfers in 2012-13 enrolled at UC Davis (117), UC San Diego (79) and UC Berkeley (71). Out of these three institutions, only UC Davis experienced an increase in the number of Foothill transfer students from 2011-12 to 2012-13.
- UC Santa Barbara experienced the largest percentage rate increase in the number of transfer students between 2011-12 and 2012-13 (12 to 34 students).
- Compared to neighboring community colleges, Foothill transferred fewer numbers of students to the CSUs but a greater number to the UC system (except for De Anza).

In the past academic year, 349 Foothill students transferred to a CSU while 414 transferred to an UC institution. While the UC transfer numbers continue to be on an increasing trend since 2009-10, the CSU transfer numbers have fluctuated over the past four years (Table 1). However, the 2012-13 CSU transfers closely mirrors the 2010-11 number (349 vs. 346). As noted earlier, the changes in the annual CSU transfer rate may be partially explained by the revisions to San Jose State University's local area guarantee and the CSU system not accepting any mid-year transfers.

Out of the 349 students transferring to a CSU institution, the largest representation was at San Jose State University (170), followed by San Francisco State (66) and Cal State East Bay (37). Cal State Long Beach (9) and Cal State Fullerton (8) represent the remaining top five CSU transfer destinations among Foothill students. Compared to 2011-12, the number of transfer students to these five institutions increased, with the exception of San Francisco State which declined by two students (-3%). Foothill continues to increase the number of transfer students enrolling at Cal State Humboldt, Cal State Los Angeles, Cal State Monterey Bay and Cal Poly Pomona (Table 2).

Compared to 2011-12, Foothill transferred a higher number of students from all ethnic backgrounds, except for White students (-6) and those whose backgrounds included two or more races (-7). White students continue to represent the largest percentage among transferring students (35%) (note this percentage continues to decline from year to year), with Latinos and Asians at 17% each (Table 3).

In 2012-13, there were 733 Foothill College applicants to the University of California system, with 556 applicants being admitted, yielding a final enrollment of 414 (Table 4). There was a 76% acceptance rate with roughly three-quarters of those admits enrolling at an UC campus. The number of applications increased from 2011-12 by 7% (687 to 733).

Table 5 shows the UC institutions where Foothill students transferred. UC Davis enrolled the greatest number (117), representing 28% of Foothill students transferring to the UC system. Along with UC Davis, UC San Diego (79), UC Berkeley (71) and UCLA (69) represent the top UC transfer destinations.

Comparisons with Other Community Colleges

Here are the 2012-13 California State University and University of California transfer numbers from Foothill College along with some of the neighboring colleges. Compared to some these other institutions, Foothill transferred fewer numbers of students to the CSUs but a greater number to the UC system (Tables 6 & 8).

Among the CSU transfer students, these institutions sent the majority of their students to San Jose State University, San Francisco State University, and Cal State East Bay. While 49% of Cabrillo College's CSU transfers enrolled at San Jose State University, the proximity of Cal State Monterey Bay yielded its second highest CSU transfer destination (16%). Due to proximity and its feeder school relationships, over half of the CSU transfers from College of San Mateo and Skyline College enrolled at San Francisco State University (53% and 68%). At De Anza College, the majority of CSU transfers enrolled at San Jose State University (64%). Evergreen College, San Jose City College and West Valley also had a majority of its CSU transfer students attending San Jose State University (76%, 63% and 64% respectively).

Table 7 shows a comparison of CSU transfer students from neighboring community colleges disaggregated by ethnicity. As a reflection of the diversity in the region, most of these institutions had about one-third or less of its CSU transfer cohort composed of White students. Cabrillo and West Valley were the exceptions with Whites making up a little over half of its CSU transfer students (52% each).

Table 9 shows a comparison of UC transfer students from neighboring community colleges disaggregated by ethnicity. Asians compose the majority of UC transfer students from Foothill (64%), De Anza (77%) and Evergreen (74%), while White students represent at least half of those transferring from Cabrillo (67%), Cañada (50%) and West Valley (61%). Latino students compose about 40% of those transferring from San Jose City, which is the highest percentage rate represented among all neighboring community colleges.

Methodology

The transfer rate for 2012-13 is for the full academic year. In 2009-10 and 2011-12, CSU did not admit any spring semester transfers. Note that 2012-13 is the first time the UC Office of the President released any data regarding ethnicity of transfers by community college.
